PEER Productions

Peer Productions is a unique youth arts training company specialising in peer education through theatre and film. Based at Woking Youth Arts Centre in Surrey, we train young people (aged 16 to 24 years) as actors and peer educators, empowering them to deliver a series of drama and film projects in the community. Each year we tour our theatre in education performances to schools, colleges and youth groups in Surrey and beyond. We also create innovative film teaching resources for use in schools, colleges and youth groups, and provide outreach projects in holiday and term time for youth clubs, training organisations and schools. We run an inclusive youth theatre for those aged 8 to 23 years and a number of successful after school drama clubs.

We believe that our unique brand of peer education through theatre and film is a powerful tool which can make a difference with even the most difficult to reach young people. Much of our work focuses on topics from the PSHE curriculum and our productions are designed to work as an integral part of the school curriculum.
